Kabuli Chick Peas

Kabuli chickpeas are creamy-white and much larger than desi chickpeas. Kabuli chickpeas are usually sold whole, so seed size and appearance are critically important.

They make a pretty good pasta dish, are great in curry, make a mean felaful and are less fibrous than the desi variety, so they make an absolutely sensational smooth hummus.

Peanuts/Groundnuts

Gujarat Peanuts are highly reputable for its unique aroma and sweet taste, also Gujarat being the main growing region of Peanuts, Gujarat Peanuts has become synonymous to Indian Peanuts.

The two major varieties of peanuts produced in India are Bold (Virginia type) and Java (Spanish type). The Bold variety peanuts are typically red skinned with elongated shape. The Java variety peanuts are pink skinned with round shape.

Raisins are also referred as Sultana, Currant, Black Corinth depending on the size and colour of the grape.

Sesame Seeds

Sesame seed is considered to be the oldest oilseed crop as well as oldest condiment known to man, domesticated well over 5000 years ago. Sesame oil is sometimes used as a cooking oil in different parts of the world. Sesame seeds add a nutty taste and a delicate, almost invisible, crunch to many Asian dishes. They are also the main ingredients in Tahini (sesame seed paste) and the wonderful Middle Eastern sweet called Halvah.
